1. A radar station in Herstejske Chalupy, near Horsovsy Tyn (N 49-32, E 12-57), was located on Herstejn Hill in an old hunting lodge or a former country house. 25X1
2. The station was immobile most of the time; it became active only when an aircraft appeared on the side toward Germany. there is also a DF-ing station on Herstejn Hill from which it is possible to follow conversation between aircraft. 25X1
3. The radar station is serviced by regular soldiers with red facings on their shoulder boards. The station is in telephone communication with PS Battalion 2 at Pivon. 25X1
4. The antenna is revolving, probably all metal, divided into several parts. Its pattern gives the impression of a flower with the petals radiating from the center. It is fixed on iron framework. The antenna can turn horizontally and vertically; it is usually turned towards Germany. 25X1
